MAC SWINEY DEFLECTS IRISH FIGHT

SHERIFF TRAILS HAMON GIRL TO HOME IN EL PASO

WARRANT FOR ARREST OF CLARA SMITH IS ISSUED

FATHER AIDS HER
Trunk Was Taken From Residence to Daughter Probably in Juarez.

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 9.—Sheriff Orndorff of El Paso has received a warrant from Ardmore, Okla., calling for the apprehension of Clara Smith, wanted in connection with the shooting of Jake Hamon at Ardmore, according to the woman's father and father-in-law, the sheriff's office.

Clara Barton Smith is in El Paso, according to Sheriff Seth Orndorff. At 10:30 o'clock Tuesday night she entered the home of her parents, 1119 East San Antonio street, according to the sheriff. She was not arrested at that time, he said, because no warrant had been held here, and no definite information has been sent upon which she could be held if she were taken into custody.

Not Home Yet
The father and son living at 1119 San Antonio street, said they expected Clara would come to their home as soon as she learned of the warrant. They declared they did not know where she was, but intimated that she was not far from El Paso, unless unknown to them, she had gone far.

Deputy Sheriff John Boone says Miss Smith was in Juarez December 2. Investigation revealed that she probably had crossed the international border on a ten-day tourist passport, after giving an assumed name. Boone notified his superiors, who notified authorities at Ardmore, Okla., when they acknowledged receipt of the telegram, but did not send a warrant for her arrest.

With Trunk
December 6, Boone says, J. B. Smith and his father, J. L. Smith, left the residence on East San Antonio street in a truck, taking with them a large trunk. Boone says Clara Smith at that time was either in Juarez or had slipped back across the border and reached a house in El Paso.

RAILROAD GUARANTY COSTS $600,000,000

Washington, Dec. 9.—More than $22,000,000 was turned over to the government in the form of advances on the guaranty provisions of the transportation act, and in loans between the government and the carriers, according to figures sent to congress today by Secretary Houston. According to an estimate submitted by the secretary, the total amount necessary to make good the guaranty provision of the transportation act will approximate $600,000,000.

Action to compel the treasury to advance about $400,000,000 more is pending in the district of Columbia courts, according to the carrier's attorneys. The guaranty act, which was passed by congress in 1917, provides for the payment of $250,000,000 to the carriers on which payments aggregating $250,000,000 were made up to November 30 last, and for the balance of $100,000,000 to be paid on or before December 31, 1920.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 9.—Matters of public policy and welfare, instead of the scientific technique of farming, occupied the attention of delegates at the opening session of the twenty-fifth annual convention of the International Farm congress. The day's proceedings began with the reading of the message of United States Senator Charles McNary, president of the congress. An address by Herbert Hoover, former food administrator, also was read. Mrs. Bernice Wilson, left, city council member, and Mrs. Jennie S. Jasswell, right, retiring mayor and now member of city council, and below, Mrs. Mary Burr, mayor.

A wave of feminism at Tonawanda, Oregon, swept women into all city offices and the future of this struggling community will be watched all over the country, as it is believed to be the first city in the United States having all its city affairs conducted by women. The five women elected are all about middle-aged and while they have not had much experience in politics they have all long been recognized as being able to conduct the affairs of their homes in a businesslike way. Mrs. Wilson, one of the members of the council, is a school teacher and the wife of the postmaster. Mrs. Burr, the newly-elected mayor, is a bookkeeper and has been a busy businesswoman.

London, Dec. 9.—Prospects of an Irish truce, which last night were generally regarded as having receded almost out of sight, have been revived according to a late edition of the Daily Mail, as a result of a private interview between Monsignor Patrick Joseph Clune, bishop of Perth, and Premier Lloyd George yesterday.

Dismiss Suit Against Mayor

Judge Grim Fails to Find Any Grounds for $10,000 Slander Suit

Grants Oestreich's Non-Suit Motion Made at Close of Plaintiff's Testimony—Finds No Malice in Mayor Welsh's Published Statement Mentioning Defendant Briggs, Ex-Policeman.

The $10,000 slander suit of Daniel W. Briggs against Mayor Thomas E. Welsh came to an abrupt end and fizzled out with hardly an audible gasp when Judge George Grimm threw the action out of court this morning.

The action came as the result of a casual motion of "non-suit" by the defending attorney O. A. Oestreich. Arguments by Charles Enslow, attorney for the plaintiff, failed to stem the quick decision of the court.

The court held that there had been no malice in either the statements of the mayor, the published statement of the plaintiff or the action of the mayor.

There had been no damage, according to the ruling, and at no time was there any direct slander of libel.

Briggs, who today filed the detailed published statement made by the mayor explaining the police trouble and containing "heavily" statements that the plaintiff in the case was a "drunken bum" was demanded by the situation at the time and the defendant's position as mayor.

Defending Character.
"The case has done one thing," explained the court, "there is positive indication that Briggs is not a drunkard or a bum, but a man of good character. He may have misstepped, but no time did his action warrant being defamed. However there is no evidence that the mayor at any time directly defamed him or slandered or libeled him."

The plaintiff suffered no damage for he earned more money after having resigned from the police department than while a member of the department.

The court ruled that the loss of Briggs' position as a policeman was not due to any action by Mayor Welsh, hence no damage. The fact that Briggs resigned seven days before the alleged slanderous statement was published in the paper, was granted, to be followed by a post-mortem shaking of hands on the part of the plaintiff and the defendant.

Briggs was placed on the stand this morning. He spoke of the trouble with Al Oliver, going to South Janesville, going in to obtain bottled beer on Sunday, and the fact that he was a member of the police department.

He said that he was a member of the police department and that he was a member of the police department and that he was a member of the police department.

"LITTLE" ENTENTE OPPOSED BY FOCH OVER BULGARIA

STRONG OPPOSITION TO LEAGUE MEMBERSHIP IS WEAKENED.

CANADA WINS COMPROMISE REACHED AFTER LONG DEBATE ON PLAN OF ORGANIZATIONS.

Geneva, Dec. 9.—The strong opposition of the members of the "little entente" to the admission of Bulgaria into the league of nations was materially weakened today by the receipt by the commission on the admission of new states of a report from the Bulgarian government that the country has fulfilled her treaty obligations better than any other enemy country.

Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Greece have been conducting a fight for several weeks against the entrance of Bulgaria into the league.

The commission has outlined numerous alleged violations of the peace treaty by Bulgaria.

The final action on Bulgaria's application for admission probably will be taken by the commission this afternoon. It is believed that the "little entente" will be able to secure the admission of Bulgaria.

The "little entente" is a group of nations which were considered yesterday by the assembly. It has been abandoned as the result of the compromise reached at midnight last night by prominent delegates to the assembly meeting here.

The compromise was reached after a long debate on the plan of organizations. The plan was adopted by a majority of 10 to 9.

BRITISH REFUSE PASS. PORTS OF COMMITTEE FROM AMERICA.

LETTER IS SENT Hope Expressed That Action Taken in London Is Not Final.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Hope that the decision of the British government not to permit the special committee of Americans to visit British territory to obtain information about conditions in Ireland is not expressed in a letter sent today to the British embassy by the commission of the Committee of One Hundred, investigating the Irish question.

The letter was sent to represent the final opinion of the British government. The commission's "action" would seem to follow. It would seem to imply automatic interference by the government with the committee's work.

The letter said the commission would continue its work in London. It would continue its work in London. It would continue its work in London.

There is a great increase in all classes of mail at this time of the year. Early mailing of holiday packages relieves the situation for the postal employees, by distributing the extra business over a longer period of time. Also the sender will receive better attention and more careful handling than would be possible if mailing were postponed till the last minute. Christmas parcels may bear the inscription: "Not to be opened till Christmas." Packages should be addressed with ink. The sender's name and address should be placed in the upper left hand corner. Fragile articles such as glassware, crockery (wood preferred) and tightly packed with excelsior or paper on all sides so that the article cannot move within the box."

A SWEETHEART AT THIRTY

The Story of a Woman's Transformation
BY MARION RUBINCAM

CHAPTER XVI ESTHER'S ADVICE

The day after commencement, true to his word, Mark came around in his little runabout car and took me out for a drive. I always enjoyed auto riding, and I had done little of it, though most of the summer about our way possessed in expensive machines.

But this was not a pleasant ride. Mark drove slowly and cautiously, a moderately good horse would have covered the ground faster.

"There's been a lot of changes since I was here last," he remarked now and then as we went along. He pointed out things that were different, the new barns, the many factories, the villages that had expanded into miniature towns. He had a remarkable memory for small things.

He stopped in front of a leather factory, one of the many shoe factories that had come up in our part of the state.

"You wait here," he told me, and went into the office. After a few minutes he came back, and I did for an hour at least, staring ahead at the most uninteresting group of cottages. He came out at last, and without a word of apology for his delay, he started the car along the road home.

He never asked me where I wanted to go, or what I wanted to see. I thought you'd like to come with me," he remarked on the way back. "And I had to drive over to see Campbell about some shoes he's wholesaling. I'm thinking of taking up shoes as a side line," he added, seeing an explanation was necessary.

"Got a big garage business?" I asked, knowing I'd add on shoes and yard goods and such. New factories and new people coming, means more trade."

"You sound very prosperous," I observed, thinking that Esther would be interested in any gossip I might bring her.

"Oh, yes, I'm a good business man, a good business man," he said, with a broad smile of satisfaction. His profile looked curiously inadequate for the size of his face, as I glanced at him. This is in often the case with fat men—neck, cheeks and body outgrow the original pattern, so to speak, and the general effect is the profile of a child of four on the frame of a man of forty.

"I've made quite a lot of money, quite a lot," he went on. "Guess I'm practically retired now. I'm thinking of taking Billy in with me. Seems as though my business ought to go to some member of my family, and he's my own sister son."

"Oh, yes, yes, they do appreciate it," his sister said, it was so complimentary. "I'll make a man of him. I'll work him hard, make him learn the whole thing in a few years I'll turn over the actual work to him, and just keep a majority interest in the place—sort of retired partner."

Billy to do. But I was wise enough not to say this.

"Got a nice house over there too," Mark went on. "House, garden, garage—got my car and a good housekeeper. My wife would have an easy time of it."

"Your wife, but I thought—"

"It had slipped out. I had not meant to say that."

"Sure, I am a widower," he answered, my half-spoken question.

"But there's no reason why I should stay single, is there? I got a lot to offer a wife, nice house—"

"I was afraid he was going down the list, again, but his attention was distracted by a passing car."

"I enjoyed the drive," I said politely, as I got out—unassisted, by the way—at our gate.

"Well, yes, I thought you might," he said graciously. "I had to drive over there, and I thought, since you don't get out much any more, you might enjoy going."

And with this brilliant speech, he drove off. But he did turn around to shout back that he was coming again.

Amused, and angry—mostly angry—I went up to the porch. Esther was in the kitchen, ready to fish up the supper. She turned to me, her small eyes eager for news.

I remember so well how she looked—it was not and she had not worn corsets that day. Her figure was a bundle of flabby, looking flesh, held in the centre by the loose stringy belt of her working dress. Heads of perspiration stood on her forehead, her skin was hot and shiny. Where she had a corn she had cut a slit in her old shoes.

"Well, tell me, did he say anything?" she demanded.

Knowing Esther I recounted every word he said, as far as I could remember. Esther listened eagerly, occasionally stirring the vegetables on the stove.

"Well, it would be a joke if he took you after all," she said.

"Now you take my advice and go. I thought you were a wise and good man by this time. But he might—"

"men do queer things, you never can tell about them." She poured off the soup from the pot, and set a pan—it was always saved for soup; we never wasted anything.

"You lost him before when you might have had him," she said.

"Now you take my advice and go. I thought you were a wise and good man by this time. But he might—"

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR JOE:

I gave the baby a treat this afternoon. I rode downtown and carried him through Sprocker Drps. toy department which as you can imagine is all fixed up for Christmas with a thin man all dressed up like Santa Clause (the department store Santa Clauses are all such thin men, how do you explain that, Joe?) and everything.

The baby seemed to have a wonderful time, hardly crying at all except part of the time in the trolley car coming and going and part of the time in Sprocker Eros. I pointed out the different toys to him and told him their different names, and although I wouldn't want to go on the stand and swear that he actually understood it all, perhaps in later years when he's really old enough to know what toys are, the whole scene will come back to him like a flash in the pan and everything will be clear to him.

And now, Joe, get ready to prepare to laugh. I was in the trolley car half way home, when the man in the seat in back of me nudged me on the shoulder and said, "I beg your pardon, madam, but you dropped this." And what does he hand me but a new silk stocking! Well I guess you know, Joe, I'm not in the habit of having strange men accost me under false pretences and get away with it, so I drop up a cold shoulder and says, "Can it be barely possible?" I says, "that you are addressing me?" That was showing him his place, wasn't it, Joe? And just to let him know I expected him to keep it after I'd shown it to him, I added even more coldly, if possible, "I dropped neither that nor anything else."

"The baby dropped it, to be quite correct," he says. "He was carrying it in his hand and he dropped it over your shoulder."

Well, Joe, you could of knocked me down with a feather duster. The baby must of picked that stocking up while we were passing one of the counters on the way out. The price tag $4.50, is still on it, but what good is even the most expensive pair of stockings with one missing? So what would you do, Joe, send it back? Anyway I hope and trust it's not a prevaricator, the baby is going to be crazy about the girls. Good luck and love,

TESSIE.

FILET COLLAR TO FIT SQUARE NECK IS PRETTY FANCY

By ELOISE

The fashionable necklines of the hour is square. Of course it is always a bit dangerous to write what the fashion of the hour is, for it may change before the ink is dry, but one thing is certain—square necked frocks and blouses will be with us at least another season. I know, for I have seen some of the new blouses for spring wear. The blouses are very often collarless, with just the square effect, but frocks are a very different matter.

The dark wool, velvet or satin frock usually has a collar and it is for these frocks that the neckwear departments are displaying fetching and dainty collars and edgings. A collar to fit the neckline is a find indeed, and here is one which is made for the fashionable square necked frocks. It is an exquisite piece of workmanship made of filet combined with Irish lace and cut-work embroidery. It fastens at the back, leaving the front a plain and unbroken line.

RECIPES FOR A DAY

Baked Ham, Cider Sauce—Cook the ham until tender and then cool in water and remove the skin. Now place in a bowl one cup of brown sugar, two teaspoons of cinnamon, one teaspoonful of nutmeg, one teaspoon of allspice.

Mix and then put into the ham in the oven and when starting to brown baste with one-half cup of vinegar and one-half cup of boiling water. Bake in moderate oven one hour. Serve with sauce made as follows:

Add to the pan in which the ham was baked one cup of water, four tablespoons cornstarch and two-thirds cup cider. Stir to dissolve the starch and then add one-half teaspoon of ginger and one-half teaspoon of allspice. Bring to a boil and cook for three minutes.

Porch Custard—Line a buttered shallow baking dish with sliced fresh or canned peaches. Beat two eggs until light, add one-half cup sugar, pinch of salt, one heaping teaspoon flour and when smooth add one and one-half cups milk and one teaspoon vanilla. Mix well and pour over peaches. Bake in a moderate oven until thick.

Stuffed Pork Chops—Buy as many pork chops as necessary, cut thick with pocket in. Make dressing as you would for chicken stuff and insert dressing, place in saucy roaster with some water and cook slowly until done, then remove. Add one-half teaspoon chicken bouquet or meat sauce and serve.

Celery Soup—For this use tops and outside stalks of celery. Boil in plenty of water and salt to taste. When done well press through a sieve all of the celery and add to water it has been cooked in. Thicken with flour and milk well mixed. Add pepper and more salt and serve very hot.

Cabbage Salad—Put cabbage through meat chopper, using the coarsest knife, and lay in salt water to crisp for one hour. When ready to use drain off water, add one pint of oil, cut fine, and one-half cup chopped peanuts and mix with mayonnaise dressing.

Shrimp Salad—One cup baked shrimp, one cup chopped celery, one-half cup diced potatoes (leftovers). Toss the above together with favorite mayonnaise and arrange attractively on plates.

Oyster Salad—Cut oysters into small pieces, mix with diced celery, lemon, sweet red and green pepper, nuts and mayonnaise. Serve ice cold on lettuce.

Orange Salad—Peel and slice thin three oranges and two apples. Separate into bite and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise.

Pineapple Salad—Clean crisp white lettuce leaves. On a bed of these lay slices of fresh pineapple, a few cherries and a sprinkling of English walnuts. The pineapple should be the basis of the salad. Pour mayonnaise over this, then garnish with a few whole cherries and serve ice cold.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a friend who is going to get married and she wants me to be her maid of honor. I don't know how to dress. I thought of having a black velvet dress and big picture hat. Some people say I should wear an evening dress. Please tell me how to dress.

The bride is going to wear a brown suit and have a reception after the ceremony. It should wear an evening dress should I wear a hat? Should the groom send me flowers? If he doesn't send them, should I buy them? P. D. G.

Since the wedding is to be very informal and the bride is to wear a suit, you should not wear an evening dress. Black is not appropriate for a wedding. I would advise you to wear a suit or an afternoon gown. Doubtless the bride will wear a hat with her suit and so it would be all right for you to do so, too.

At a formal wedding, the groom sends the bridesmaids flowers. Since the wedding is to be informal, however, I doubt if the groom will send you any. Do not buy them for yourself.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man eighteen years of age. I have no friends. Other boys I know go out with girls and enjoy themselves. I am invited to dances, parties and card parties, but I can't dance or play cards. I would like to go to a social center and learn dancing, but I don't know if they enroll pupils at all times. How could I get acquainted with some girls?

It seems as though no girl would pay any attention to me. If I am invited any place like a dance or party, I think I wouldn't enjoy myself and would only be a wallflower, as they say.

I have had many chances of going out on the stage. I would like to, but my parents object. Do you think it would be right for me to go? I have had plans of going since a little boy. I think I have a talent for it. Do you think I am to young?

YOURS VERY TRULY,
You would not have any trouble enrolling at a social center. You could probably do your bit to teach others things you know in exchange for the same. It would be a case of give and take. A boy need never be a wallflower. Once you learn to dance you can ask girls to dance with you. They will be glad to do so, because a girl finds herself a wallflower if she is not asked to dance.

Doubtless you have men friends who would gladly teach you to play cards and who would also introduce you to girls. If you want to learn to dance, ask your friends to take you to a dance. They will be glad to do so, because a girl finds herself a wallflower if she is not asked to dance.

As for going on the stage, you are too young to do so without the consent of your parents. Since you have intended to do so since you were a child, the career does not seem to be a whim. When you are of age you will be free to follow in the direction of your own choosing.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl fourteen years of age. My mother objects to my walking home from town with boys once in a while. Please advise me what to do.

MISS X.
Your position is a difficult one. It will surely be embarrassing to get rid of a boy who catches up with you and walks along. I cannot see what harm there would be in his accompanying you, if you walk straight home and do not loiter on the way. Of course you should never go around so that a boy can walk with you. Probably the only thing for you to do is to say that your mother does not want anyone to walk with you.

later on if you don't give it. While it is not now considered the grievous offense against the conventions it once was to give a young man your picture before you are engaged to him, it is still to be carefully considered and done—if at all—with caution. Like letters, pictures are easier to give away than to get back again, and too often they become embarrassing remembrance or evidence of an interest that did not last.

About Introductions
"Dear Mrs. Thompson—About introducing people, should I introduce my wife to my employer, or him to her? And should she shake hands with him?"—Young Husband.

The general rule is to introduce men to women, and the younger person to the older where any marked differences in age exist. Persons of great consequence, celebrities should have introductions made to them. In the case of your wife and your employer, if he is a much older man and you are a good way down the list of the staff, you could with propriety ask if you could present your wife to him. Otherwise, say that you would like him to meet your wife. She should not offer to shake hands, but merely bow pleasantly and make some appropriate remark.

Happiest words of the whole year—to the littlest child that can understand them—to the dearest old grandmother who can hear them, and to every whole-hearted human being between.

Never was a brighter Christmas in prospect than this one. The war has gone further into the past and the evils it left behind are passing away.

What a happy thought it is going to be, when we are puzzling over gifts for friends, to realize that Christmas money will buy so much more than it would a short time ago—more quality or quantity—MORE HAPPINESS FOR FRIENDS—may now be brought with every dollar that is spent.

Our Christmas Store Invites You!

It never was more interesting, for its array of Gift-Things, or for the attractiveness of the prices.

They tell us that this is going to be a year of sensible, practical gifts. That has been the wholesome tendency for years, and we have provided abundantly for those who wish to buy sensible, practical gift-things. Every section of our store is filled with them, and forehanded folks, who do their Christmas shopping early will be delighted with what we have to show them now.

But there will always be friends for whom the less practical things are desired—the things that one may count it extravagant to buy for oneself, but which one is so delighted to receive on Christmas morning. These, too, are here, in gratifying variety.

"Christmas is Coming!"

To enjoy it most fully and avoid all its unpleasant worries, DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING NOW—get the best pick of the gift-things and avoid the rush and worry of those vexatious days just before Christmas.

Was it Santa Claus who Changed the Style of Women's Hand Bags?

New and beautiful styles have just come out—so different from those that women now have—making the best possible holiday gifts, for you are sure that the lady has nothing like them and will be most delighted to get a new Bag

Final Team Work
Janesville High school's senior aggregation of class basketball artists turned the dope upside down and inside out Wednesday by defeating the sophomores to the inspiring music of 28 to 7. Although they started out at a pace that was terrific and which tired them before the first quarter was over, the seniors settled down to a steady pace and with the best team work seen in the present interschool series led the ball game after the first into the mouth of the sophomores. The seniors, started with the number of baskets made and was everywhere on the court, much credit goes to Smith and Newman for their vigilant and aggressive playing.

Sophs Outclassed
The sophomores showed lots of fight and had the ball in their hands for most of the game, but they were outclassed by the seniors who lost dozens of times, many of them too long, killed their chance for a fight. The seniors, however, did not let the sophomores get a chance to play the game alone, but McCluskey and Rasmussen showed willingness but little form.

Tough Game Today
Anderson and Grubb played nice guard games. Newman taking rugged guard, which he got away with to perfection. This afternoon the seniors battle the juniors with the outlook one for a tight fight. With the seniors playing a slightly better game, the junior forwards will have a tough time.

CHI FIGHTING FOR LEGALIZED BOXING

Chicago has hopes of rivaling New York city as the fistic center of the universe. This is the information coming out of the Windy City where several forces are at work to secure the legalization of boxing in Illinois. Preliminary measures are being considered. Within a few days a campaign will be agreed upon. When the legislative convenes in January the question will be put squarely to the solons. Hope is entertained that the lawmakers will act favorably on the movement. It is reported that enough state senators and assemblymen have given favorable response to practically assure passage of the law.

Writers Boost Scheme
Greatest opposition is expected from lawmakers from the rural districts. None of them has yet been approached. Prime movers of the plan are members of the American legion and Spanish war veterans at least they appear on the surface as the ones most actively interested. Those who are behind the scenes are under the impression that the real sponsors are the ones who have labored for years past to secure recognition of boxing in Chicago. Included in this group are a number of representative sporting writers.

GRAIN

Chicago Review.
Chicago, Dec. 9.—Wheat prices turned downward today after a show of strength at the start. Initial gains were ascribed to the liberal export business done yesterday. Buying orders this morning, however, were in volume. Opening quotations, which varied from the same as yesterday's, finished 12 to 14 cents lower.

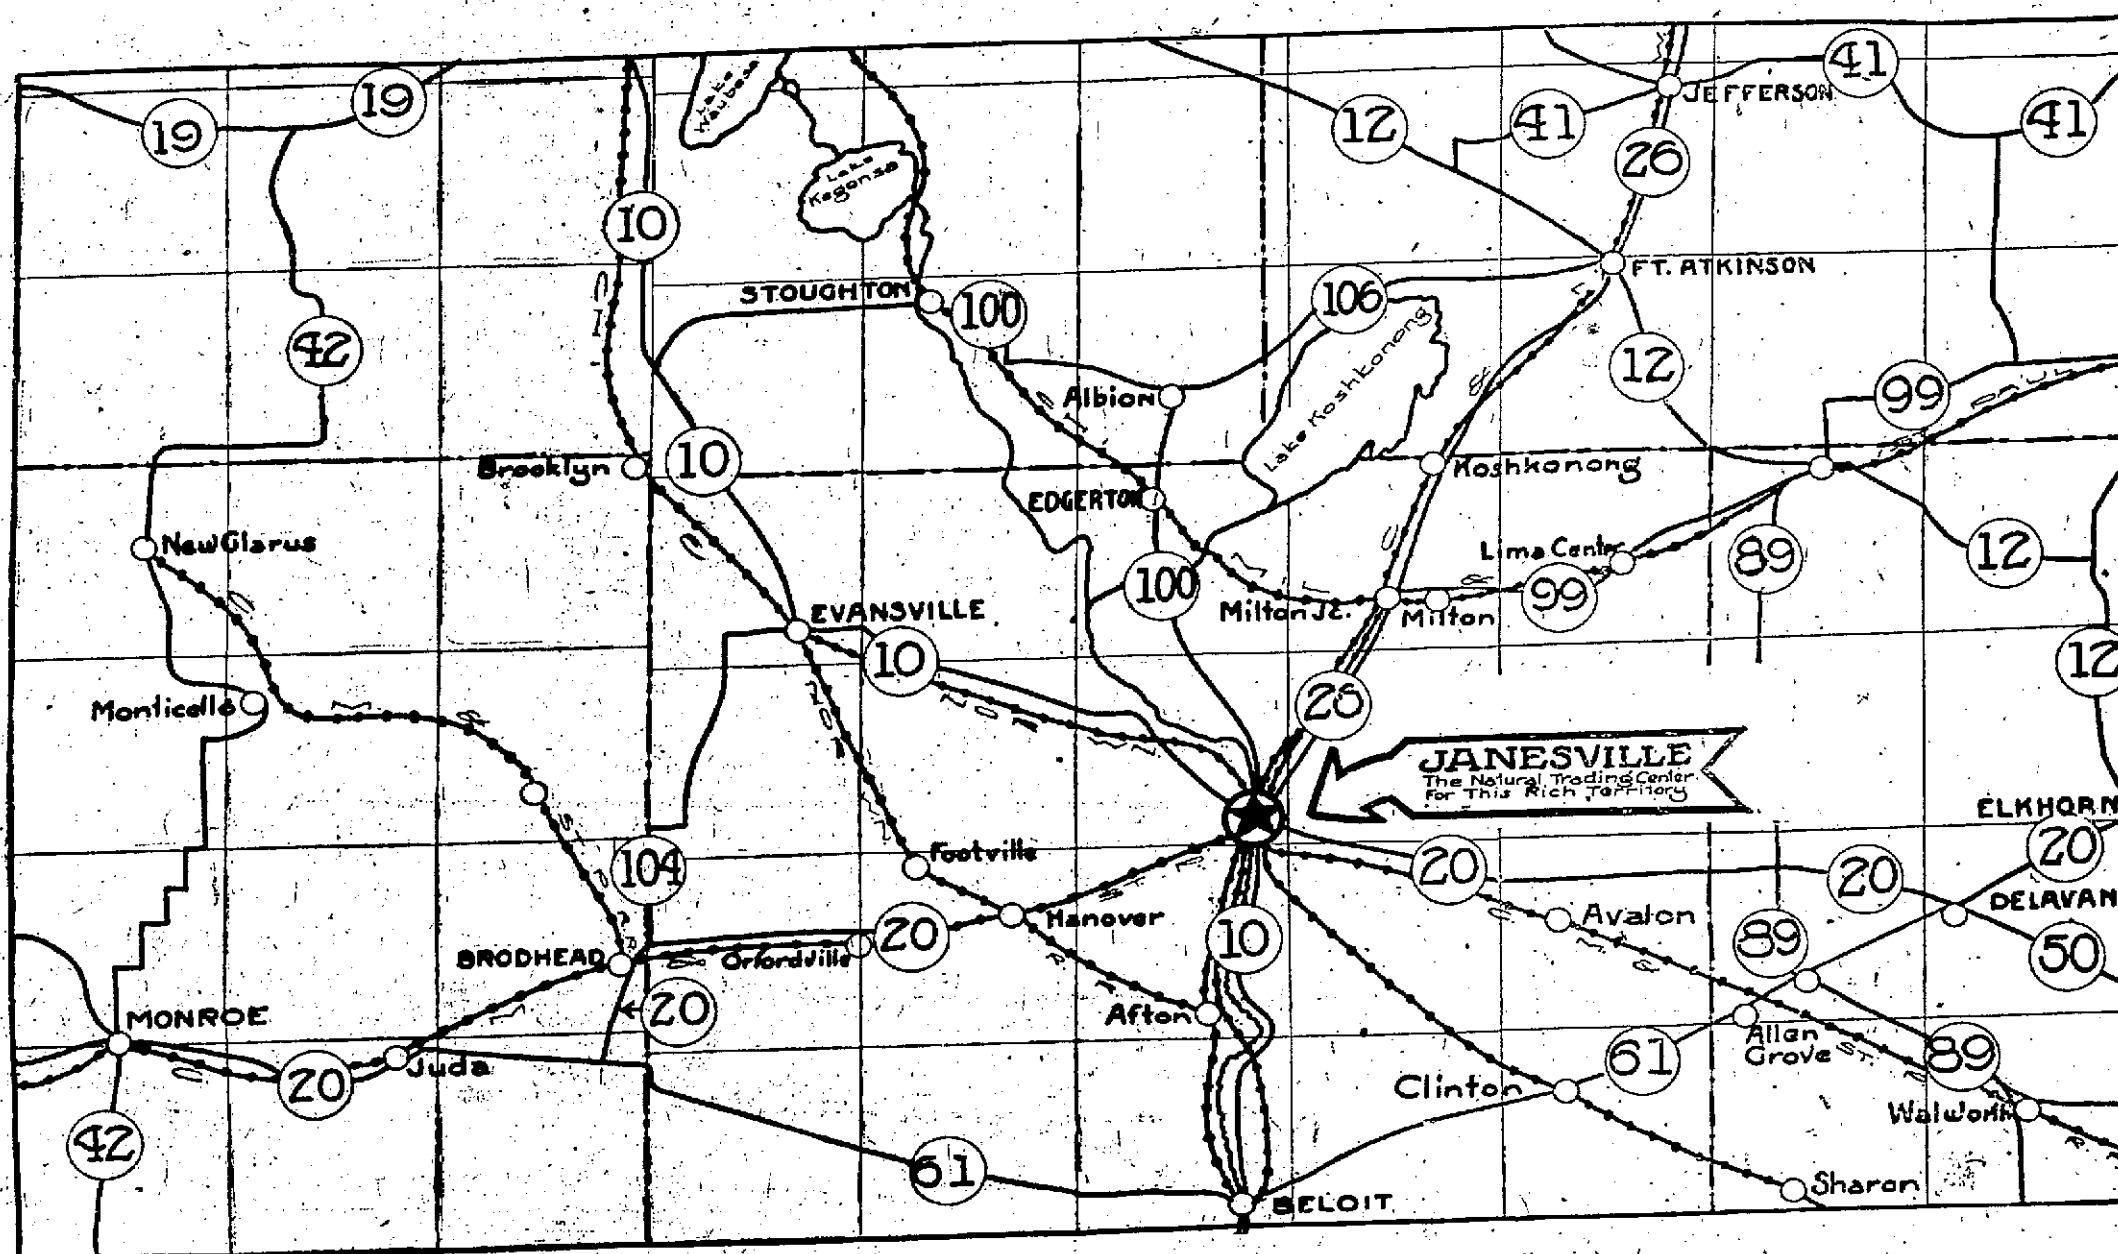

Scarcity of receipts here held the corn market relatively steady. After opening 1/2 cent higher, it advanced, including the 1/2 cent advance, the market underwent a slight rise. Later, the market receded, with wheat, the 1/2 cent advance, the 1/2 cent net lower, with May at 75 1/2 to 76 1/2.

Barley, 1/2 cent higher, and fairly firm, starting unchanged to 1/2 cent higher, May 52 1/2 to 53 1/2, and then down to 52 1/2.

Absence of any aggressive support made the provision market weaker. Some of the early gains were lost. Chicago Cash Market.

The Strongest Buying Influence in this Rich Market is The Daily Gazette

WHEN A MAN or woman in Evansville, Edgerton, Brodhead or in any of the other places on this map wants to buy something, where does he or she look for buying information? In the Daily Gazette.

The Gazette's atmosphere of news and facts lends a business-like sincerity to advertising in its pages. News of a product, news of a store, news of this community and of the world's doings stand side by side. The reader's natural interest in the one extend to the other. Not only interest but confidence.

The Gazette serves this large market with a sound circulation based on the primary importance of serving the reader and his interests which makes for reader confidence and buying responsiveness. This Gazette circulation is audited semi-annually by the Audit Bureau of Circulation, an independent audit organization composed of newspapers, magazines, advertisers and advertising agencies of which the Gazette is a charter member.

There are 80,000 people in this market. A large percentage of them want to trade in Janesville this Christmas. They are able to afford and will buy luxuries as well as utilities.

The Gazette believes that advertisers are entitled to a good circulation, proper space plus service. This service is a service of actual co-operation—exceedingly valuable. The Gazette believes that the merchants of Janesville can get results through these advertising columns—can get them economically.

Your business advertised in the Gazette this Christmas Season will share the interest and confidence that the public has in the Gazette itself and will be very profitable to you.
